

Summer Research Opportunity for Undergrads

The E.P. Bradley Hospital, Brown University affiliated Sleep Research Laboratory in Providence, RI, announces research apprenticeships available for the summer of 2016: The William C. Dement Summer Sleep and Chronobiology Research Apprenticeship. This fellowship is intended for undergraduate students interested in an intense full-summer (May 29 through August 18) experience in a human sleep research laboratory. [Recent graduates or doctoral students may apply as well.] The apprenticeship funds a summer stipend ($3,600) and may support travel to the June APSS meeting.

The application deadline is 02/24/17.

Please direct interested students to the following web site for additional information and application material:

<http://www.sleepforscience.org/academic/apprenticeship.php>

Thank you for your help.

Sincerely,

Mary A. Carskadon, Ph.D.

--

Mary A. Carskadon, PhD

Professor, Psychiatry & Human Behavior

The Alpert Medical School of Brown University

Director, Chronobiology & Sleep Research

EP Bradley Hospital